

The St. John's Evangel

Dear people and friends of St. John's,

After some delays due to the tropical storm, Fr. Wayne and Harry moved into their new home on Tuesday, September 11. Their address is:

The Rev. Wayne and Harry Nicholson
212 Carroll Avenue
Bay Saint Louis MS 39520-4514

For the time being, their cell phone numbers and email addresses remain the same. Send them a note anytime. They would love to hear from you!

The next Vestry Meeting on Sunday, October 14, includes major steps in the search process. We hope to approve the formal charge to the Search Committee and to begin the formation of the Search Committee comprised of 8 members (2 from the Vestry and 6 from the parish at large). We have a few nominees already. If you are keen to serve on the Committee, please contact me or Junior Warden Nancy Kinney as soon as possible. Remember, this is a major commitment of time and effort for a year or more.

In other news, thanks to Steven Berkshire for upgrading the parish WIFI network in September. There is a new and improved router in the church with extensions in the Parish House and the Conference Room in the Old Rectory. When you need to sign in with the new password, please contact the Parish Secretary ahead of time.

Work on the exterior of the Parish House continues. The walls and chimney have been power-washed and will be painted as weather permits. New landscaping is in the works too!

On October 6, Rev. Sr. Diane Stier, Karen Varanauskas, and I will attend the Pre-Diocesan Convention Meeting of the Central Region at St. Andrew's in Grand Rapids. This is an important time to learn about the proposed budget and resolutions to be discussed at the 144th Diocesan Convention on November 2-3 in Lansing.

On October 7 at 10 a.m., bring all of your pets to our annual Blessing of the Animals!

On October 14 at 5 p.m., join us for the first Evensong of the academic year.

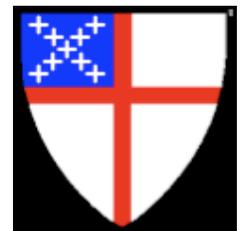

We'll celebrate another baptism on October 21 at 10 a.m.

And then, get ready for our first Arty Party on Friday, October 26! All proceeds from this art auction will support acoustical improvements in the Parish House.

"Stay calm and carry on!"

Love to all in Christ,

David
Senior Warden & Verger

Parish House Kitchen Linens

If you took the kitchen towels and dish cloths home to wash after Coffee Hour, we do appreciate that! However...you need to remember to return them to the kitchen as soon as you can! We want to be sure that our next Hosts have fresh, clean linens when they are needed! Thank you!

Home Communion

Just a reminder: you should let the parish office know if you are ill and wish to receive communion or a visit from either the clergy or a Lay Eucharistic Minister.

Outside the Tent

On September 21 we celebrated the life of long-time parishioner, Forrest Robinson. His daughter, Allegra Blake, read two poems in his honor. The acoustics in the church being what they are, I am sure that those who sat near the back did not hear what she read, and so I send your way one of those poems, "Shifting the Sun," by Diana der-Hovanessian.

When your father dies, say the Irish you lose your umbrella against bad weather.
May his sun be your light, say the Armenians.

When your father dies, say the Welsh
you sink a foot deeper into the earth.
May you inherit his light, say the Armenians.

When your father dies, say the Canadians
you run out of excuses.
May you inherit his sun, say the Armenians.

When your father dies, say the Indians
he comes back as the thunder.
May you inherit his light say the Armenians.

When your father dies, say the Russians,
he takes your childhood with him.
May you inherit his light say the Armenians.

When your father dies, say the British,
you join his club you vowed you wouldn't.
May you inherit his sun, say the Armenians.

When your father dies, say the Armenians,
your sun shifts forever
and you walk in his light.

Those of us who have lost our fathers can relate to the powerful images the author—who died this past year—sends for our contemplation. Those of us whose fathers still live can give thanks for that blessing.

Peace,
Nancy

Vestry Minutes, September 9, 2018

Present are Adam Baker (clerk), Tom Cochrane, Clancy DeLong, David Shirley, Eric Vineguerra, Bernice Cole, Marcia David, Harriett White, Nancy Herman-Kinney, Ulana Klymyshyn.

Bernice opens with a prayer. Vestry welcomes Harriet.

Marcia moves to approve August minutes, Nancy seconds. Vestry approves August minutes.

Clancy reports that we have exceeded the Rector Discretionary Fund for the year. Clancy reports that we are about 2/3 of the way through our budget for the year. This is normal for end of summer. Everything else in budget looks in good shape. When Clancy looks into updating QuickBooks we will decide if the cost is worth it for this year.

David announces that he will not approve any new initiatives until a new rector is installed, so we focus on the projects we have before starting new ones.

Clancy mentions that now is a good time to bring budget items up to date without Rector's wages in the budget.

Clancy leaves.

Diane mentions that there are a few people in the parish with severe gluten intolerance. We use a separate paten and chalice for gluten-free wafers. She suggests that to maintain the "one bread, one cup" ritual ideal, we consider switching to all gluten-free bread. She also suggests we look into buying a bigger paten with a better lip. Vestry expresses support for her plan.

David proposes that we adopt the same language from the previous charge with amended language to have a budget of $20,000 for search committee and recognize the role of the new Canon Missioner. David believes we should try to form the search committee by October. David believes our agenda for the October meeting should focus primarily on forming the search committee.

Nancy reports that the two bids she received for painting and power-spraying the building are very different. Tom moves we accept Travis's bid for doing the whole building, Eric seconds. Tom moves we amend the motion to also give Nancy permission to buy paint for the job. Vestry approves amendment. Vestry approves motion.

David mentions the noise in the parish hall, both from the HVAC system and ambient reverberation. David knows a company in Grand Rapids who will do acoustic remodeling. David would like them to do an inspection and give a quote. Vestry expresses support, with Tom reminding David to be sure whether the quote is free or not before asking them to inspect the premises. David also asks the Vestry if St. Johns should register (for free) at the Let Peace Reign event at Island Park on September 29. David also encourages as many people as possible to register for and attend the discernment retreat at Emmaus at the end of this month.

Next meeting is scheduled for Oct 14th.

Bernice moves Vestry adjourn, Nancy seconds. Vestry adjourns.

Faithfully submitted,
Adam Baker

ANGLICAN WORTHIES

335. Temple, Frederick (1821-1902) Archbishop of Canterbury

Photographs of Temple give a distinct impression of confidence and self-reliance that hide his unselfish work ethic and his humanity. It is true that Temple maintained “strong principles of morality and piety; these were what the drudgery of church life led to,” he said, and these he hammered home. If some of us no longer respect the earnestness that seems so characteristic of the best-known figures of that age, which we associate with *Gladstone, Thomas *Arnold, and others, we need to look at them more closely. I think their deep Christian faith maintained them to a degree less familiar to us.

Temple was born on Santa Maura, one of the Greek islands under British rule, where his father was Resident. Later the family moved to Corfu. His father, disliking his post, moved the family to a farm in Devon, where he tried to make an honest living in the soil. The elder Temple was contumacious, picking quarrels with his neighbors over the Corn Laws and other issues. He took a position of Lieutenant-Governor of Sierra Leone, where he soon died, leaving behind on the farm his wife and eight children who survived infancy, needing their maintenance and education. At first Temple was schooled by his mother, who drilled him in Latin, a subject she did not grasp herself. Mark Chapman says that Temple never forgot his debt to his mother for his early education and remained close to her for the rest of his life.

Despite the eminence he later achieved, he never “left the farm,” so to speak. David Edwards states that “to the end of his days he retained the marks of his childhood: a rough accent, no small talk, clarity and directness of mind, an unswerving strength which made light of the burden of incessant labour despite heart trouble and failing eyesight.” Even when he became a schoolmaster at Rugby, he loved to climb trees, and would boast of his skill in ploughing and threshing to others whose smooth hands had never touched a farm implement.

But at least in Devon he was able to be properly schooled. In 1834 he was enrolled in Blundell's School in Tiverton, where he quickly became outstanding. Blundell's had an endowed scholarship to university, which Temple won, and in 1839 enrolled at Balliol, in Oxford. He could not have chosen a better place for modern, liberal learning. This was Benjamin *Jowett's college! Temple's academic strength was “maths,” as the British call it. At Balliol he was almost impoverished. He could not afford wine with meals, nor a fire in his room, nor lamp in the evening. (He used to sit in the lighted stairway to read!) He was reading Kant and *Coleridge; he liked philosophy. He studied under Archibald Tait and W.G. Ward, names mentioned in these essays before. He found the new German biblical commentaries, which challenged the veracity of the Bible, interesting, as did *Clough. He attended *Newman's popular Sunday afternoon homilies and came away thrilled. He became very popular among his classmates, among whom we note Clough, of course, A.P. *Stanley, Matthew Arnold (son of Thomas Arnold of Rugby), and others who would become distinguished in the Church. And, of course, he studied under Jowett.

(Temple's widowed mother moved to Oxford to be near her boy.) Temple graduated in first class honors in classics and mathematics. He was immediately offered a fellowship; i.e., he was asked to remain and teach. A trustee of the college said to him, "Temple, I cannot say what you are going to be, but this I am sure of, that if you live long enough, you will be one of the greatest men in England."

The purpose of higher education is to learn, to be introduced into new ideas to get your stupid mind changed. Chapman tells us that Temple came to Oxford as a Tory, but because of his education, he gradually became more of a Gladstonian liberal. In 1846, while still at Oxford. He was on the election committee charged with deciding what to do in the case of his mathematics tutor, W.G. Ward, who was influenced by Newman and becoming Roman Catholic. Temple ruled with the university against censure and "degradation." Later, when the Oxford dons, after the furor over Tract 90 had died down, wanted to condemn Bishop Hampden for his lack of orthodoxy, Temple backed off. Temple was ordained transitional deacon in 1846; the following year he was ordained priest by Samuel Wilberforce. He remained in Oxford another year.

From 1848 to 1857 Temple served on a committee of the Privy Council on Education first as an "examiner." His particular interest was in the preparation of a curriculum to train persons how to teach. In 1849 he was appointed Principal of Kneller Hall, a new institute designed to prepare others for work educating children in workhouses. This venture was eventually a failure because clergy protested that religious education would be neglected; besides, the pupils were not very bright. There was no "system" of general education for children at this time; this was England, not Scotland. Regardless of the failure of this project, it caught the attention of Oxford and Cambridge to develop curricula, with Temple's input, to prepare teachers.

When Archibald Tait, as Headmaster of Rugby, left to become Bishop of London, he invited Temple to succeed him. Temple declined; he really hoped to succeed Jowett as Master at Balliol. Ten years later the post fell vacant. Tait approached him again; this time Temple accepted, becoming headmaster of the school that, since the days of Thomas Arnold, had become the most distinguished public school in the kingdom. It was at Rugby that Temple, not Arnold, became the most distinguished schoolmaster of his time. He rejuvenated the place, which had been coasting on its laurels.

Temple increased his staff, adding more teachers—and paying them more. He liberalized the curriculum, making English language and literature "subjects" and expanding instruction in history and the sciences. He raised funds to construct a new building for music and the arts. Rugby football, heretofore a pretty brutal contact sport, fraught with injuries, was toned down to make it safer and more accessible to boys. Temple was a grim disciplinarian, but very popular among the students. "A beast," they called him, "but a just beast." During his tenure applications for admission increased to three times the number of places.

While headmaster he was asked on two occasions to report to commissioners on the state of secondary education in the kingdom. His recommendations led to the Public Schools Act of 1868. In 1869 Gladstone offered Temple the deanery of Durham Cathedral, which he declined. The Gladstone offered him the choice of four bishoprics. Temple chose Exeter, the seat of his boyhood.
